Stefanie -

We will accept service for Mr. Schobinger.

As I have related to you, this is completely unnecessary, as Mr. Schobinger has deleted all confidential Twitter files from his personal computer, as he was instructed to and agreed to do. Twitter's insistence on over-reaching and unnecessary measures to confirm he has done this is simply harassment, an invasion of privacy, and unnecessary. He says that he did not agree to this intrusive protocol that Twitter suggested prior to retaining us.

Further, there is no need for Twitter to obtain a TRO, as there is no risk of any harm, nor any violation that has occurred. As you know, I am out of the country with my family on vacation this week and not in a good position to respond right now to an emergency filing. I will be back Wednesday night but then traveling for a mediation on Friday, so I'm not really available again until next week.

If you insist on going forward with seeking a TRO or other emergency relief, I would ask that you attach this correspondence as an exhibit for the judge and explain that Mr. Schobinger intends to respond but his counsel is not available until next week and he objects to an order being entered, which is not only unnecessary but would harm his reputation and could affect his ability to find another job.

If Twitter persists in going down this road, we'll seek reimbursement from Twitter of our legal fees for defending against these allegations, as well as damages for any harm caused to Mr. Schobinger.

Shannon and Brad,

We filed the attached yesterday evening (see the below) and will be following up with the Court today to check on available hearing dates. The attached is not yet file stamped because the court has yet to "accept" it but hopefully will today. We can send you what we get when it comes across.

Please let us know if you will agree to accept service on behalf of Mr. Schobinger.

Thank you,
